College Dixie Parlay SWEEPS! NFL 7-Star "Lock" WINS Sunday

Chaos reigned in college football last Saturday as there were upsets all over the board, highlighted by 3 of the top 4 teams in the country going down. But once again "The King of College Football" and "The Greatest Big Game Handicapper" in sports betting history guided his clients through the minefield and unleashed his own brand of chaos on bookmakers in Las Vegas and offshore who had to keep cashing winning Dixie Parlay tickets!

Harry Bondi's famed Dixie Parlay features two games played south of the Mason/Dixon line and this year featured games played deep in the heart of Texas.

Notre Dame (-14) destroyed Army, 44-6, in San Antonio and West Virginia (+1) took out Texas in Austin, 24-20.

The 13-to-5 two team parlay pay-out propelled Football "Steam Team" members' already bulging bankrolls to record highs and our 3-1 Saturday and another winning NFL Sunday ran our current football streak to 21-9, 70% and increases our college top play record to an amazing 13-2, 87%, for the season!

Just on our college top plays our $100 per unit "Steam Team" members have won $5,410! The good news for you is that if you missed out on this incredible run or you have not won 87% of your biggest bets this season, you can get with the service that has done exactly that for only $58 a week!

You read that right. You can save your season or knock out your bookie with 87% winners for the next 12 weeks, right through the Super Bowl on Feb. 5th, for just $699. That's only $58 a week to become a member of the winningest football service in America in 2016!

NOW is the time to jump on board as this weekend looks super strong. On Saturday, we will have another very strong college football top play and on Sunday it's another one of our legendary 7 Star Lock winners: Our NFL "Lock of the Month."

Adding excitement and profits to our incredible run in football is the NBA and start of the college basketball season.

We blasted out to a 12-5 start in the NBA and as we write this newsletter, we are undefeated in college basketball! The easiest sport to beat is early season college basketball when lines are softest and the bookmaker is concentrating more on football than hoop.

BONDI'S BEST BETS

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 19TH

CHARLOTTE +4 over Middle Tennessee State 2 P.M. ET

Sometimes the oddsmaker is slow to correctly adjust to a key injury, and that is certainly the case with Middle Tennessee State. Two weeks ago, the Blue Raiders lost star QB Brent Stockstill for the season with a broken collarbone and up until that point the team had gained over 400 yards of total offense in every game and had only turned the ball over twice in the previous five weeks. But since freshman John Urzua took over at QB, it's been a disaster. The team lost to Marshall and Texas San Antonio as heavy favorites, losing to the pointspread by a whopping 73 points, while coughing it up eight times. With that said, we think it's a bargain to grab the 49ers plus the points here. Despite last week's disappointing 22-21 loss to Rice, the 49ers have improved dramatically as the season has progressed and had covered their previous four games before last week, while winning three of those games outright. And considering Charlotte was embarrassed 73-14 by Middle Tennessee State last year, we don't think they'll have any sympathy for the Blue Raiders and their injury problems and will instead bring a fully focused effort. The Niners cash in for us with the outright victory. 35-28

★ BOSTON COLL -7 v. UConn

We used Notre Dame (-13) over Army last week, 44-6, as part of our Dixie Parlay because Irish head coach Brian Kelly was playing for his job. Similar situation here for BC's Steve Addazio, who needs a win to keep his job after another dismal season at The Heights and he'll get it against a UConn team that's covered just nine of its last 35 games overall and is 4-10 ATS in its last 14 road games. Blowout! 28-10

★ UL-LAFAYETTE +23 v. Ga.

Considering Georgia has scored 16 points or less in 3 of the last 4 weeks and Lafayette has allowed more than 26 points in regulation just twice all season, we certainly don't mind taking the three TDs. Toss in the fact that this is a "sandwich" spot for the Bulldogs, who come in off a huge upset over Auburn and have in-state rival Georgia Tech on deck, and this play makes even more sense. Bulldogs struggle. Take! 27-17

★ NEVADA +6 v. Utah St.

Utah State blew any chance of going to a bowl game when it coughed up a 21-6 lead to New Mexico last week and then with the game tied 21-21 failed to score on 4 tries from the 2-yard line before losing 24-21. Tough to get back off the mat after a nut-cutting loss like that and then lay points on the road so we'll call for Nevada to improve its record to 7-4 ATS after a conference loss and earn the money here today. It's 34-31

SUNDAY, NOVEMBER 20TH

TAMPA BAY +7.5 over Kansas City 1 P.M. ET

With their unfathomable come-from-behind 20-17 win at Carolina last week, the Chiefs are now a mind-boggling 18-3 straight up in their last 21 games. But as impressive and surprising as that record may be, it doesn't translate into putting money in the pockets of Chiefs backers, especially when they are at home and expected to win by margin. During this current streak the Chiefs are a "perfect" 0-6 ATS when listed as a favorite of more than 6 points at home. The reason is simple: Head Coach Andy Reid doesn't care about style points or point differential. When his team gets a lead, Reid slows the game down, doesn't take any chances and allows his game-managing quarterback Alex Smith to do just that: manage the game. What that does is keep the opposing team in the game and in position to cover for all four quarters and that's what we expect to happen once again here this week as the surging Buccaneers come to town. Tampa Bay is averaging more than 28 points per game the last four weeks and with All Pro running back Doug Martin finally at 100% they'll have just enough to keep this game close until the final gun. Take the points! 24-23

★ NEW ENGLAND -12.5 v. San Fran.

We used the Patriots in this spot in October the week after they lost to Buffalo and we'll do the same here as Bill Belichick and Tom Brady are 34-13 (72%) ATS the week after a loss. The tired San Francisco "D" has allowed 33 points or more in 6 of its last 8 games and will be no match for the powerful and pissed off New England offense that will try to score every time it touches the ball. It's a Pats rout! 34-16

★ UNDER 53.5 POINTS - Tennessee at Indy

We used Over 48 in the Green Bay/Tennessee game as our Free Pick at HarryBondi.com last week and it was another easy winner as the teams combined for 72 points. That ran Tennessee's record to 7-0 to the over in its last 7 games, but the oddsmaker has overreacted here, opening this total as high as any Titans game since 2004. Tennessee will use its power running game to keep this one low-scoring. UNDER

Harry Bondi's Handicapper's Notebook

Visit www.HarryBondi.com for daily updates, FREE PICKS and online sportsbook ratings

In last week's Handicapper's Notebook at HarryBondi.com we mentioned that NFL favorites had covered an uncanny 58% of the games through Week 9 and we predicted that it wouldn't last. Sure enough, as if on cue, underdogs came out barking in Week 10, going 10-4 ATS with nine outright victories. That had many sportsbook directors in Las Vegas and all over the world smiling, since public bettors and handicappers always get buried on weeks that the favorites go down, but the sharpest handicapping team in the country here at Harry Bondi Sports not only avoided disaster, but turned in another profitable Sunday.

In fact, it would have been another NFL Sunday Sweep for us, if not for the idiocy of Steelers Head Coach Mike Tomlin, who pissed away the game for his team by electing to go for two after all four of Pittsburgh's touchdowns and failing to convert all four times. For the season, the Steelers are converting just 33% of their two-point conversions and while the "math guys" out there will try to tell you it's "positive EV" to go for two more often than kicking the extra point, we don't buy it. What those "geniuses" don't take into account is momentum and when the Steelers missed their first two conversions of the game, they led 12-3, instead of 14-3. It made a HUGE difference to the psychi of BOTH teams and, in the end, the Steelers were left chasing those missed points the entire game, eventually leading to a 35-30 loss.

Upsets were also prevalent in college football last weekend, as referenced on Page 1 of this newsletter. Overall, six teams that were a dog of +300 or more on the moneyline won their games outright on Saturday, with the biggest upsets coming when Iowa (+1200) beat Michigan and Pittsburgh (+990) shocked Clemson. To put that in perspective and to drive home the point of just how unpredictable college football can be, there have now been 57 teams at a moneyline price of +300 or more to win their games outright this season. In the NFL, there have been just two all season and both involved the Arizona Cardinals, who lost to New England (+330) and the LA Rams (+355).

The upsets in college football will have major ramifications in the Playoff Rankings that will be released on Tuesday. Two teams that we have very high on our power rankings that won't be in the playoff mix are LSU and Southern Cal. Since the departure of Les Miles, LSU has gone 4-1 ATS and has outscored its opposition 163-58, with the only loss a tough 10-0 setback at home to No. 1 Alabama. Meanwhile, after a 1-3 start, the Trojans are have won six in a row and have covered four in a row, outscoring opponents by a similar score of 164-71. We could count the number of teams in the entire country that we would have favored over LSU or USC on a neutral field right now with one hand and we'll be looking to cash in on these now underrated teams if the opportunity presents itself in the final few months of the season.

Harry Bondi is one of the few handicappers honest enough to just run one service with one set of games. There are no special "Millionaire" plays or private plays. We don't have a website that gives out selections from 10 different handicappers that are really the same person operating under a bunch of different names.

Harry Bondi Sports remains the most ethical service in America and nobody can come close to our 87% winning percentage.

There really is no other choice if you want to win without getting jerked around. We are going to continue to WIN BIG in football and basketball and hope you will be with us for it.
